ments to the contrary regarding this matter by the Opposition press, this explanation is generally accepted as satisfactory.

IN ANOTHER COLUMN will be found a letter addressed to the District Commissioners by Colonel T. Luby, the Commissioner of the Washington Asylum, in regard to the establishment of a House of Reformation for Women in the District of Columbia. Like all other documents emanating from this official, the recommendation has the impress of practicality upon its face, and should meet the hearty approval of the Commissioners and of citizens generally. All agree that such an institution is one of the necessities of the District, and when it is shown that it can be inaugurated under the direct control of the municipal authorities at such a small cost, the endorsement will be to begin it at once. The grounds and buildings suggested for the purpose are convenient and commodious, and can easily be spared. The sum named is comparatively small, and the good to be accomplished great. If the Commissioners take this matter in hand at once, and secure the necessary legislation and appropriation, they will be doing a good act, and one which will only rebound to their credit, but prove a benefit to the helpless outcasts, and add another to the many good institutions of the District. Let the trial be made.

JUG-HANDLED INVESTIGATIONS.

The "policy" of the Opposition in the coming campaign is now fully developed. It rests on the single purpose of overwhelming the public with a perfect avalanche of carpe diem statements regarding the transactions, official and otherwise, of Republican office-holders. The method by which this avalanche is being prepared is as plainly to be seen as the nose on the hand. The investigating committees of the House, under the control of Democratic, Confederate and Dough face chairmen, scrape the seams of political life for evidence of the kind they require, admit statements of interested parties, disappointed candidate-seekers and soreheads generally, and give eager ear to every slanderous charge. Their batch of accumulated calumny is doled out to the public in dribbles through the columns of the Detective Press every day, in the hope that the lies it contains will have the effect to make public sentiment against the Republican party before the counter-acting influence of the truth can be asserted.

In other words, the Democratic press, as represented in the present House, has simply disgraced and degraded itself by voluntarily becoming a great national slander-monger.

And what are the Republicans of the House doing to offset all this? Nothing—absolutely nothing. This journal, aided by a few columns of equally interested party principle and the cause of good government, has succeeded in unearthing un- doubted Democratic rascalities which have turned the tables, so to speak, against our opponents in the public estimation; but in the exception of the Republican minority in the War Department Committee, but little, if anything, has been done to direct the attention of the public to the truth, as we can learn, Republican committee-men are too apt, pending the examination of witnesses, to keep quiet, and, instead of subjecting witnesses to rigid cross-examinations regarding the motives inspiring their testimony, they permit carpe diem statements to go on the records without even the shadow of a protest. The result will be that, at the Government expense, for a very small money. The articles of im- pending are not so strong as the public expectation demanded. Nevertheless this abuse in the political meal must be disposed of summarily.

The New York Sun thinks Messrs. Tattam and Olinde, the partners of Mr. Kilbourn, should be incarcerated with him. The Ex-Confederate House will probably differ with the Sun on this point. One elephant at a time is quite enough for that body to carry, and the public is beginning to understand that Mr. Kilbourn is being persecuted, not prospected.

The Gorgonian chief who pretends to be so anxious to build a railroad across the continent, has been in a bad humor all the week at the failure of his little scheme last Monday. His stockholders and smuggled bill did not win, and the result has been that all the little "in-juns" of the Gorgonian tribe have been visited with the anger of the chief.

The weakest campaign document yet promulgated by the Ex-Confederate House is printed in our news columns in the form of a report from the Judiciary Committee regarding Attorney General Pierpont's letter to District Attorney Davis. The strained effort to make it appear that the letter was intended to protect criminals is so apparent in every line as to discount the intended effect of the report, and, in fact, produce a contrary result.

The cost of transporting army supplies from the nearest railroad station in Texas to El Paso is one dollar per hundred pounds for each hundred miles of distance traveled. The distance is seven hundred miles, so that every pound of freight for the use of the army at the point costs one dollar. Can there be any stronger argument offered in favor of the building of the Texas and Pacific railroad? Of course every man of sense understands that Jay Gould's proposal to build the Southern Pacific is a sham, and only intended to defeat the building of a road that would break down his monopoly.

A prominent New York lawyer recently expressed the opinion that the decision of Chief Justice Waite is not against the constitutionality of the enforcement acts, as is being stated by Southern newspapers. He simply decided that the indictments in the Louisiana case were improperly drawn by the parties who were indicted, and all violators of the enforcement acts will be held strictly responsible. There is no comfort for the Ex-Confederate Democrats in the Southern States in this decision, and their newspapers would do well to mislead them no further into violations of this law.

Bill, the detective witness, before the War Department investigating committee, yesterday was allowed altogether too much latitude in answering the questions propounded to him. Nearly all of his so-called testimony was irrelevant, and the fact of the investigation was made up from his exceedingly imaginative surmises. Mr. Danford put an ineffectual ball-punch on his tongue at the close of the examination, but one should have prevented him from expressing his personal opinions regarding Gen. Babcock's guilt or any other subject. It is evident, however, that the majority of the committee is seeking for opinions rather than facts.

Tux opinion upon very generally prevails, in view of recent explanations, that Secretary Robeson's transactions with Jay Cooke, McCulloch & Co., in the matter of the navy deposits in London, pending the failure of Jay Cooke & Co., were not only justified by the emergencies then existing, but are sustained as sagacious and economical by subsequent events. In other words, it is now clearly to be seen that the Secretary had not acted exactly as he did the house of Jay Cooke, McCulloch & Co., embarrassed as it was by the failure of Jay Cooke & Co., would have been still more embarrassed, and the result would have been injurious to the Government. Notwithstanding the statements to the contrary regarding this matter by the Opposition press, this explanation is generally accepted as satisfactory.
